

Historic Building Visits

Whittington Court April 2026

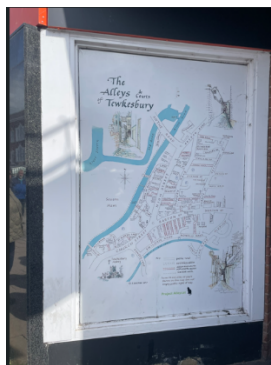

An Elizabethan manor house featuring a charming, irregular design with 17th and 19th-century wings. It has undergone extensive, long-term restoration by the Stringer family. The house is known for its textile design studio and has historical significance, though it is often not open for general public tours.

On a grey day we enjoyed the enlightening and informative staff and family members who guided us through the rooms. A house filled with fascinating written records, photographs, pictures and collections. But we spent so long in the house that we missed the drystone wall demonstration!

Tewksbury Historical Alley Tour

We gathered alongside the alley map of Tewkesbury next to the monthly Fine Food and Craft market.

We set off along-side other visitors to the town, ready to walk through the history of the early development of the town, its alleys, courtyards and the people who lived there.

Our guide was a veritable font of knowledge.

Some of us decided to finish the tour by making our way to an ancient beer bar. Totally fascinating day out!
